Dear Ladies and Gentlemen,

The coronavirus crisis continues to hold the world firmly in its grip. Rising infection numbers in Europe have prompted many governments to firmly tighten measures to stem the spread of the virus. As a result, uncertainty regarding the future development of the crisis is now again on the rise.

As infection rates fell over the summer months, hopes were high in Europe in particular that the coronavirus curve would flatten, paving the way for a rapid economic recovery. Now, however, it looks likely that the pandemic will continue to have a significant impact into fiscal 2021. As a result, we expect to meet our Strategy 2022 goals (revenue > EUR 2 billion, EBIT margin > 11 percent and net working capital ratio ≤ 30 percent) one to two years later than previously planned. This does not detract from our firm conviction that we are on the right track with the execution of our growth strategy. The long-term trend towards compact equipment in the construction and agricultural sectors remains unchanged and offers major opportunities for our Group. Eco-friendly solutions and alternative drives are gaining in importance for our customers, who have become much more open to the possibilities of digitalization and electromobility through the crisis.

Now more than ever, it is important that we focus on areas which we can actually influence. Above all, this means investing in our customers – in our sales structure, delivery speed, services, digital processes and the development of new, innovative products.

We are also better aligning our organization to ensure we continue to successfully navigate this crisis and secure our long-term success. As part of internal Group restructuring, the Executive Board has been expanded to include Felix Bietenbeck in October. In his capacity as COO, Mr. Bietenbeck's many years of international experience and expertise will be an invaluable asset to Wacker Neuson. We would like to warmly welcome him to the Group and we look forward to working together.

The Executive Board team of Wacker Neuson SE
